PLO Secretary-General urges international community to act “before it is too late”

Secretary-General of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO)’s Executive Committee, Hussein al-Sheikh, urged today the international community “to act urgently before it is too late” and to send investigation and protection committees for the crimes of the occupation.

Al-Sheikh said in a tweet that “the role of the Palestinian Authority is to achieve the Palestinian national project of freedom, independence and protection of the Palestinian people.”

He stressed that the PA “will not accept anything other than this national and historical role. What we are exposed to is a fierce, all-out war that requires the unity and cohesion of our people with all their forces.”
